A Biased Judgement The Sherlock

Many people are turning to one of the BBC's greatest achievements to mark a terrible moment in European history tonight. They are recalling that lump-in-the-throat moment from the first episode of Civilisation where Kenneth Clark said, "What is civilisation? I don't know.

Is the BBC biased?

Analysis of the Example: In his later years, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, author of the Sherlock Holmes stories, became a devout believer in ghosts and mediums and devoted himself to proselytizing for spiritualism.

Logical Fallacy: Misleading Appeal to Authority

Mina "Margery" Crandon (1888–November 1, 1941) was a well known psychical medium who claimed that she channeled her dead brother, Walter Stinson. Investigators who studied Crandon concluded that she had no genuine paranormal ability, and others detected in her outright deception. She became well-known as her alleged paranormal skills were touted by Sherlock Holmes author Sir Arthur Conan ...

The sad thing is that it would be wonderful if Democrats and the media would devote at least some time to discussing other issues. I'm not saying this one isn't serious, I'm just saying that the Administration is doing a lot of other horrible things and there were also huge problems with income equality, racism, sexism, transphobia, xenophobia, etc. before they ever even got into power.

Trump wants to distract us from the Mueller report. We can ...

Today, an increasing number of people in the world believe in the theory of Darwinian evolution. In particular, the vast majority of institutions of higher learning in most of the nations of the world only teach that all life on earth "evolved" from a single cell which somehow popped into existence.

How To Disprove Evolution - The Last Days

If you've watched the new Netflix series Making a Murderer, you're probably left wondering who killed Teresa Halbach and why. The 10-part documentary makes a very convincing case that the local police planted evidence and provides a strong motive for why they might have done such a thing.
