Faith Hunter's 2010 novel Blood Cross, the second in the very entertaining Jane Yellowrock series, is a fun entry into the genre. Hunter's excellent world building and writing distinguishes this series from the sub-genre of urban fantasy female Cherokee skinwalkers who actively hunt and kill vampires and are befriended by witches in an alternate history universe.

Jane Yellowrock Series by Faith Hunter - Goodreads

Jane Yellowrock is the primary protagonist of the story, a black haired vampire hunter of Cherokee descent. Empowered by the blood of her race, Jane has the ability to take the form of any creature, the most notable of which include a devil cat, puma, catamount, screamer and cougar. As a skinwalker Jane has the ability to resist vampire compulsion.

Blood Cross is the second book in the Jane Yellowrock series. Jane is Cherokee, a shape-shifter with the soul of a mountain lion (or other large cat) inside her, and a vampire-hunter for hire. This book picks up where the first book - Skinwalker - ended, and I think that this book will be much more enjoyable and understandable if Skinwalker is read first.

The Jane Yellowrock series was merely one in a sea of dozens of urban fantasy novels, if not hundreds. The books only attracted interest and attention in the years that followed, drawing readers in because of their strong female character. The Jane Yellowrock series takes place in a world where the supernatural is commonplace.
