The cool sea breeze whipped Jon's matted hair behind him, counteracting the unhindered rays of the summer sun. He rested his hands on the caravel's railing, watching the vast expanse of dark blue water as far as the eye could see - no land having been in sight since leaving White Harbor and the open arms of House Manderly.

As noted in the other answers, and by this excellent blog post you want to avoid using `async void` outside of UI event handlers. If you want a safe "fire and forget" async method, consider using this pattern (credit to @ReedCopsey; this method is one he gave to me in a chat conversation):. Create an extension method for `Task`. It runs the passed `Task` and catches/logs any exceptions:
