This Technical Report summarizes visual photometric measurement methods which can provide visually meaningful assessments of light. They can be more complicated than the simple use of of a $V(\lambda)$ -corrected physical photometer, and in addition require some understanding of the visual system and how it works.

ISO/CIE TS 22012:2019(E) Light and Lighting — Maintenance Factor Determination — Way of Working This document is a Technical Specification outlining a way of working to determine the maintenance factor for both outdoor and indoor lighting installations using the methodology as described in CIE 154:2003 and CIE 097:2005.

Luminaire classification by EN 13032-2 and CIE 040-1978 The luminaire code according to EN 13032 -2 (CEN code) for direct-indirect-distribution luminaires consists of 9 parameters. In contrast to the aforementioned classification according to DIN 5040 , these parameters specify the respective luminous flux percentage of the 9 solid angle ...

Photometric variables are commonly used to assess the light properties in the visible range, i.e. from 380 to 780 nm; they are weighted by the sensitivity of rods and cones for humans, according to the CIE luminous efficiency function or $V(\lambda)$ curve (CIE, 1978).
