Spring constant is the amount of force required to move the spring a set amount of distance. The set amount of distance is determined by your units of measurement and your spring type. For example if you are calculating the spring constant of a compression spring using English measurements your value would be pounds of force per inch of distance traveled. If you are using the metric system ...

Your second option for dimming is to use a 0-10V wall dimmer, like our A019 Low Voltage Dimming Control. This is the better way of dimming if you have multiple units, as the 0-10V dimmer can work with several drivers at a time. Just hook the dimming wires right to the input of the driver and you're good to go.
