Types. The main types of literature reviews are: evaluative, exploratory, and instrumental. A fourth type, the systematic review, is often classified separately, but is essentially a literature review focused on a research question, trying to identify, appraise, select and synthesize all high-quality research evidence and arguments relevant to that question.

A variety of definitions of leader authenticity or AL have been advanced over the years (summarized in Table 1). The earliest philosophical conceptions of authenticity within the leadership literature arose in the 1960s and reflected an assumption that an organization's authenticity is manifest through its leadership (Novicevic et al., 2006). This is illustrated well by Rome and Rome's (1967 ...
