The Big Five personality traits, also known as the five-factor model (FFM) and the OCEAN model, is a taxonomy for personality traits. It is based on common language descriptors. When factor analysis (a statistical technique) is applied to personality survey data, some words used to describe aspects of personality are often applied to the same person. For example, someone described as ...

1. Introduction. According to mindset theory (aka implicit theories or self theories; Dweck, 2000)—a theory popular both within academia and the media—individuals hold varying beliefs about whether traits, such as intelligence, are relatively stable or whether they can be changed with effort. Those who believe that intelligence and other traits are relatively stable are said to have a ...
