Since human beings can't breathe under water like fish can, you're going to need to hold your breath if you plan to spend much time below the surface. When kids play in the pool, at the lake or even in the bathtub, it's usually not long before a contest breaks out to see who can hold their breath the longest underwater.. Holding your breath underwater isn't just a kids' game, though.

The air-breathing lungs of mammals, including humans, must be dry and empty of fluids to work properly. When we take a breath, tiny air sacs in our lungs pull oxygen out of the air and carry it to our bodies' cells.. The lungs of mammals would not work very well for a fish, because one breath underwater would fill them with fluid and make them useless.

Why NIGHTSEA uses Blue Light for Underwater Fluorescence. We use blue light for underwater fluorescence for the simple reason that it is better than ultraviolet light (black light) for this application. There is no one light that will make everything fluoresce, but if you want to choose a light to give you the most varied and vibrant fluorescence experience blue is the way to go.
